Summary

As a highly experienced professional with a strong background in video content creation, I have recently switched careers to pursue my passion for Frontend Development. With over 10 years of experience in leadership roles, I have honed my skills in creative direction, team management, and storytelling.

Through my work in video production, I have developed a keen eye for visual design and attention to detail, which are both essential skills in frontend development. My experience managing cross-functional teams and collaborating with clients and stakeholders has also prepared me well for working in agile development teams.

I am excited to bring my skills in communication, collaboration, and project management to the world of frontend development. As an expert in storytelling and video production techniques, I am committed to delivering exceptional user experiences and bringing creative visions to life.

If you're looking for a passionate and driven Frontend Developer with a unique vision and a strong track record of success, let's connect at justinjchambers@gmail.com.
